

Gemma Mawdsley: Geography

I utilise fourteen years of experience, working with teaching staff, pupils and SLT to support high quality teaching and learning, review curriculums and raise attainment. I am a GCSE examiner for two of the major exam boards, an Accelerate coach for the North West region and a MITA reviewer, working with schools to review the deployment of TAs in the light of UCL's research.

I consult for the Geographical Association; delivering Critical Thinking for Achievement CPD and am a lead trainer for the British Council CCGL programme. I have been Head of Department in two schools, leading development and implementation of new curriculums and have mentored NQTs and ITT ATs
